

Press Release

Media Contact:

Michael S. White
(360) 961.3615
mswhite88z@gmail.com

Bellingham, Washington's Pacific Arts Market to Return to Same Location in Sunset Square

Running the first three weekends in December, the Pacific Arts Market is a true cooperative run by artists, with unique, handmade items for the discerning holiday shopper. This year, additional days for last minute holiday gifts.

Bellingham, WA – October 29, 2017 – Cooperative artists are proud to announce the 21st annual Pacific Arts Market returning to the same location in Bellingham's Sunset Square, next to Jo-Ann Fabric. The Market runs the first three weekends in December, Friday through Sunday each weekend, December 2-4, 9-11 and 16-18, from 10 AM-6 PM. With two additional days, Friday and Saturday, December 22 & 23, from 10 AM-6 PM.

More than 40 artists and crafters are participating in this year's Pacific Arts Market, displaying their creative, handcrafted wares. Shoppers will find unique jewelry, pottery, woodwork, textiles, fiber art, bath & body products, book & paper art, leather, 3-D art, clothing, accessories, holiday ornaments, paintings, photography, specialty foods and more, all while listening to music from local performers.

Pacific Arts Market is a true cooperative, owned and operated by the artists themselves. "What makes Pacific Arts Market unique is that the show is put on, collectively, by the artisans," says Michael S. White of NWImages. "Market shoppers are purchasing unique items that are lovingly made by local artists."

Happily returning to last year's central Bellingham location at 1125 East Sunset in Sunset Square, between Jo-Ann Fabric and El Gitano Mexican Restaurant, shoppers will find easy access and plenty of parking.

For more details about the show and participating artists, please visit www.pacificartsmarket.com